

Bryan Fletcher

Former Professional Rugby League Footballer, TV & Radio Host

A former Australian rugby league player who represented the Sydney Roosters, South Sydney and the Wigan Warriors over a 10-year career that included caps for Australia and New South Wales in state-of-origin. Bryan Fletcher's career is highlighted by his appearance for the Sydney Roosters in the 2000 NRL Grand Final and a 3-0 whitewash of Queensland in the State of Origin series.

Bryan won the George Piggins Medal in 2003 as South Sydney's best and fairest player of the season.

Bryan is known as a larrikin which was demonstrated infamously when he celebrated by pretending to use the football as a hand-grenade after scoring a try in origin game three in 2000.

Now a media star Bryan "Fletch" Fletcher is regarded one of the most gifted television stars in sport. Best known for his role on Fox Sports' Monday Night Live Show, Fletch has won thousands of fans with his dry sense of humour.
