Sir Ian's Test record of 102 Test matches, 383 Test wickets, 120 catches and 5200 runs with 14 Test centuries was arguably the greatest of any all-rounder that ever played the game. Since his retirement from competitive cricket, he has continued his involvement in the game through the role of cricket commentator for Sky Sports, as well as developing his keen interest in golf on the Pro-Am Circuit.

Ian reached a career double of 1,000 runs and 100 wickets in his 21st Test match and his tally of 100 wickets was achieved in two years and nine days. The youngest cricketer to take 200 wickets in Tests, he reached his second double of 2,000 runs and 200 wickets after 42 Tests and was the first player to hit 5,000 runs and take 300 wickets in Tests. Of his many outstanding achievements, the greatest performance was in Bombay in 1979/80 for England vs India when he hit 114 in his only innings and took 13 wickets in the match (6-58 and 7-48).

He was awarded the OBE for his services to cricket and charity in 1992 and a knighthood in 2007. He was knighted for his service to the community in raising over 35 million pounds for Leukaemia research and other charities during the past 17 years via his incredible cross country walks.
